

1- First day on campus:

My name is Anas Elgarhy, this year, I joined the Faculty of Computers and Information of the Egyptian University for E-Learning.

On my first day on campus, I felt a lot of tension and anxiety, as I moved to a new stage and left my friends who I had been with them for a long period of time, but despite that, I was feeling happy and excited because I joined the college I wanted. With the passage of time, I started to make new friends and integrate into university life little by little. It helped alleviate what I was suffering from tension and anxiety, what I had experienced in terms of help and guidance from friendly professors, and what I saw in this university of modern and advanced systems of education. With the passage of time, I became feeling more psychologically stable, mentally active, and determined to achieve what I was looking forward to.

- I have a dream:

They say that a person without dreams is a human being without life and that every person has his own dream, which he hopes will be fulfilled. And my dream is to wake up one day and find myself walking on my feet without anyone's help, and I go out on the street on my own, play sports like other young people, and go to university without an escort. I also dream of becoming a distinguished programmer in my field; And due to my own circumstances, many people may see that this is impossible, but I will remain dreaming and have full hope and trust in God that my dream will come true.
